

Tiernan Henry is a geoscientist who works on surface water and groundwater.

He graduated from TCD in 1986 with a BA (Mod) in Natural Sciences and completed an MSc in Water Resources Management at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1993. In 2003 he joined the newly formed Department of Earth & Ocean Sciences (now Earth & Ocean Sciences in the School of Natural Sciences) as a lecturer in environmental geology. He completed his PhD at NUIG in 2014. He has a Postgraduate Diploma in Academic Practice and still has notions of completing an MA in Academic Practice.

He is a funded investigator with the Irish Centre for Research in Applied Geosciences (iCRAG: <https://www.icrag-centre.org/>). He is a member of the International Association of Hydrogeologists (IAH), the International Mine Water Association (IMWA), and the Royal Irish Academy Multidisciplinary Geography & Geosciences Committee. He is the head of Earth and Life Sciences in the School of Natural Sciences at University of Galway, and the Deputy Head of the School of Natural Sciences.

He curates and hosts the Vinyl Hours programme at Galway International Arts Festival.